Berjaya Times Square Theme Park

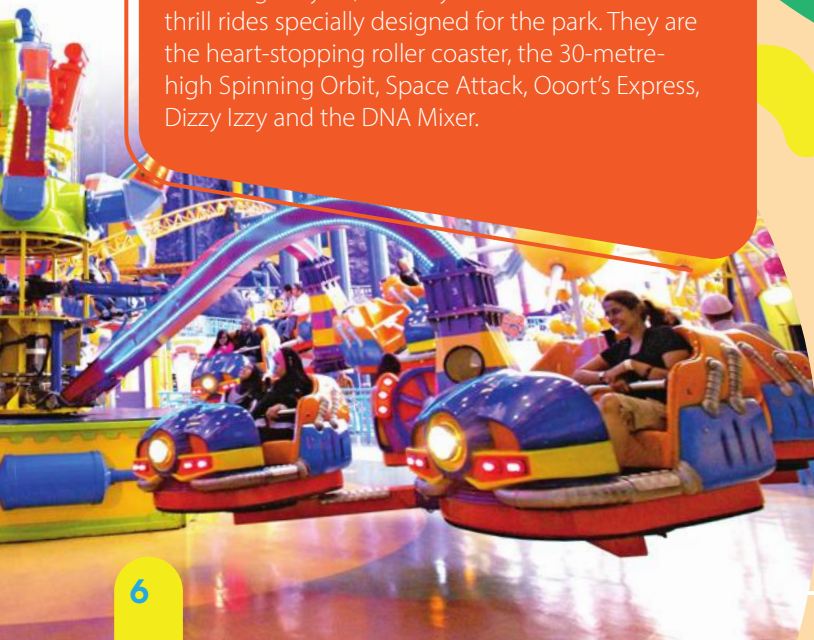

A World of Its Own

Come and spend an entire weekend at Berjaya Times Square. Located right in the heart of the city, there is something here for everyone in this integrated retail, entertainment and leisure complex which also boasts the country's biggest indoor theme park.

The Berjaya Times Square Theme Park is located on the 5th and 7th floors of the mall. Built by the fictitious mad scientist Professor Cosmo and his clumsy robot assistant Ooort, this 133,000sqft theme park is guaranteed to transport you to another galaxy far, far away. There are six adult thrill rides specially designed for the park. They are the heart-stopping roller coaster, the 30-metre-high Spinning Orbit, Space Attack, Ooort's Express, Dizzy Izzy and the DNA Mixer.

The 800-metre-long roller coaster nicknamed the Supersonic Odyssey is sure to give you the ride of your life! What makes it even more interesting is the viewing deck on the bridge connecting the 8th floor, where you board the ride, to the 9th floor overlooking the theme park. The roller coaster then loops around the bridge thus giving parents and friends a chance to see or photograph their kids riding the world's longest indoor roller coaster which plunges from the 13th floor before coming to a halt on the 7th floor. What a thrill!

Another ride bound to leave you in a daze is the DNA Mixer. This crazy invention by our mad scientist is sure to loop the minds of 21 passengers at one go. Try getting off and you'll be sure to lose all sense of direction!

A milder yet equally exciting place for the kids to be is the Fantasy Garden. It is created by Professor Cosmo and decorated with bright beautiful colours and small benches for the kids to rest when they are worn out from all that running around. There are many rides which children of all ages can enjoy. The Buddy Go Round carousel will definitely excite the youngsters whereas the rocking boat ride, Molly-Cool's Swing is sure to sway their minds.

Families can also enjoy a smooth drive with their kids through a natural wonderland at the garden with the Botanic Drive ride. To top things off, Bumper Cars are also found in the garden to accommodate both children (Honey Bump) and adults (Robo Crash). Besides the rides, the children will be entertained by Professor Cosmo himself. Together with his friends, the garden will be filled with joy and laughter.

The amusement does not stop there as the Kidz Castle is situated nearby for entertainment on stage and the children's play area, Kidz @ PlayGround, is another place of endless fun.

Wet World Water Park Shah Alam

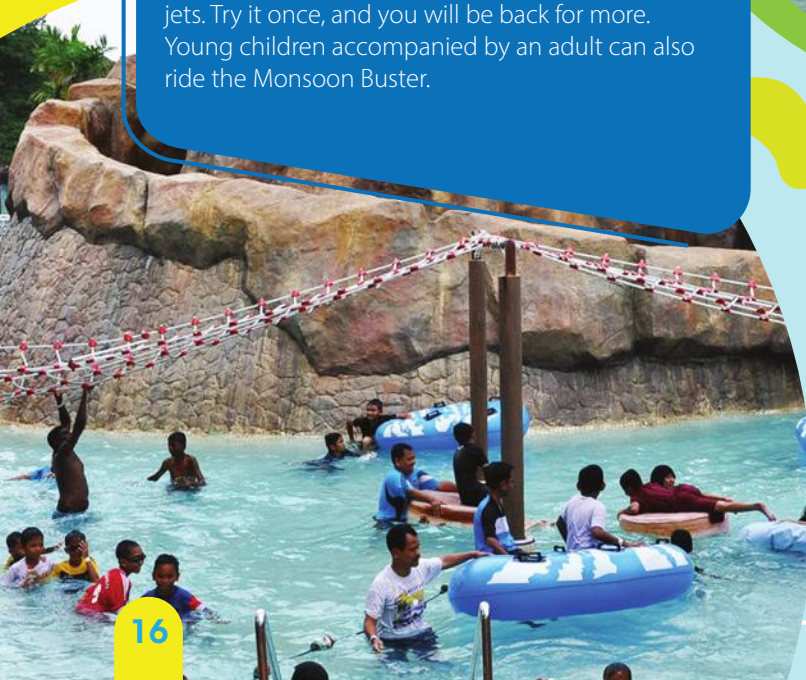

Beat the Heat

When the sun is up and the swimming pool is not enough, it's a great idea to make tracks for the Wet World Shah Alam. Facing the scenic Shah Alam Lake, the Wet World Shah Alam is conveniently located in the Klang Valley, which helps to make it one of the most popular recreational spots in Selangor.

The bright colours of the waterpark – red, blue, pink and yellow – scream fun and excitement. The most talked-about ride is the exhilarating Monsoon Buster, one of the longest uphill water coaster rides in Asia! You'll find yourself propelled forward on your floatable for some 200m by water jets. Try it once, and you will be back for more. Young children accompanied by an adult can also ride the Monsoon Buster.

For team games, more than 10 people can slide down the open Giant Slide. It's that wide! More speedy challenges await at the Tunnel Water Coaster, a closed ride, and the Big Splash, a half closed and half open slide. Waiting for you at Neptune's Challenge are 10 floatables and you have to walk across the water on these floats. Lose your balance and you'll get a dunking, but that's the fun of a water game. Getting very wet!

Kiddies have their own play area, where the attractions include the Seashell Kiddy Slide and the red and yellow Submarine Slide. Some of them will be thrilled just splashing about in the pool, or paddling in the Lazy River. You can play until closing time, and really get your money's worth at the waterpark.

A' Famosa Resort

Animal Safari, Cowboys and Waterpark

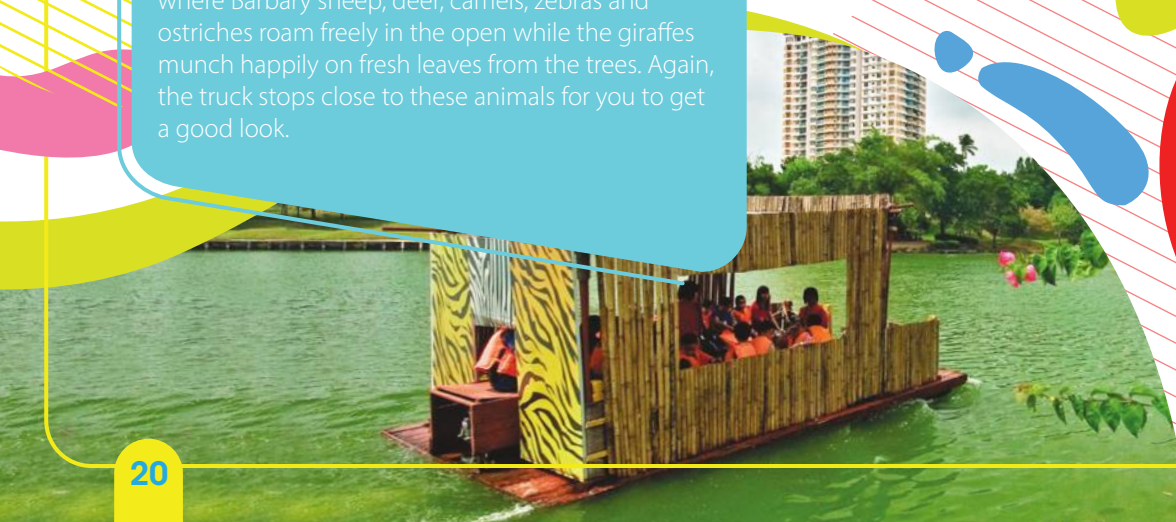

Hold tight, as you sit in the secure truck. The Safari Park Adventure Ride at A'Famosa is about to begin. This is the only safari park in Malaysia, where you can see wild animals like tigers, lions and sun bears in the open as the truck stops right next to them. But before you get to meet the lions, you have to pass through the rough and bumpy Jungle Area and cross the Crocodile River. Yes, there are really crocodiles in the water!

Watch tigers, lions and sun bears as they wander about. Also in the Safari Park is the Herbivore Area, where Barbary sheep, deer, camels, zebras and ostriches roam freely in the open while the giraffes munch happily on fresh leaves from the trees. Again, the truck stops close to these animals for you to get a good look.

With more than 100 animal species, the 150-acre Animal World Safari promises great fun and excitement. Besides the Safari Park, there are fascinating and entertaining Multi-animal, Elephant and Bird shows. To add to the adventure, you can enjoy elephant, camel and pony rides. In the Walk-Through Area are Tanzanian flamingos, black and white swans, Australian Bennett wallabies, North American raccoons and the Malaysian black and white tapirs.

There is also a dairy farm with a herd of cows, and in the Farm House are fluffy chicks, kittens, puppies, ducks and chicken. On Monkey Island are brown lemurs, squirrel monkeys, capuchins, white-handed gibbons and red-handed tamarinds.

In the evening, Cowboy Town comes alive. Here are food outlets serving local and western food, a pub, beer garden, live bands, karaoke, disco and a children's park. Showtime in the public square features cowboys and Apaches in stunt acts and trick horse riding. It's exciting to see the performers standing on the bare back of the galloping horses. After the show, visitors can try their hand at archery.

The Wild Wild West Show, starring cowboys and Apaches on horseback shooting at each other in an old frontier town setting, is like a scene from the movies. It provides lots of entertainment for the whole family.

The Water World is another popular attraction. Set in a 20-acre landscaped area, the waterpark features a Wave Pool, Lazy River tube ride, the very popular Family Raft Ride, High Speed Slides and Wild Waterslides with high-speed bends, loops and twists. Younger children have their own Tots Activity Pool with mini slides, water sprays and Aladdin's Arabian Village.

And that's not all. There is a range of sports and recreational activities including horse riding, kite flying, woodball, cycling, tennis, basketball, indoor games, fishing, jungle trekking and golfing in one of the top golf courses in Malaysia. Accommodation is available in the A'Famosa Resort Hotel, bungalows and the Condotel. As for getting around, the internal shuttle service is convenient.

Bukit Merah Laketown Resort

Discover Orang Utan Island

A must-see at the Bukit Merah Laketown Resort is Orang Utan Island, the only Orang Utan sanctuary in Peninsular Malaysia that is home to Borneo Orang Utans of different ages. These Orang Utans live on the island as part of a rehabilitation and preservation programme.

From the jetty, visitors take a relaxing 10-minute boat ride across the calm and scenic 7,000-acre lake to Orang Utan Island.

A short walk leads to a tunnel at the edge of the rainforest. Enter this area and there you can see the Orang Utans climbing, swinging about and feeding on fresh fruit in their natural habitat. This is an amazing, unforgettable experience!

From Orang Utan Island, visitors continue by boat to the Eco Park, where there are three main areas to house birds, primates and reptiles. In the bird zone, colourful South American parrots will eat sunflower seeds from your hand, and you can come real close to the free flying birds, including parakeets, yellow canaries and white cockatoos from Australia. In the next zone, are gibbons, macaques and, peeping from among the bushes, numerous gentle squirrel monkeys that love peanuts. In the third zone, see iguanas crawling on the boardwalk looking for the best place to sun themselves. There is also a snake house.

The entertaining Animal Show, staged four times daily, is another must-see and it features performances by parrots, raptors and hornbills. Not to be missed is The Skycycle, an elevated monorail through the tree canopy.

Here, you are at the same level as the treetops and looking down, you can see chickens, goats and deer on the ground. It is a fun way to explore the rainforest.

To get to the waterpark, the best way is the Chairlift ride that transports you high over the water park for some breathtaking views of the resort where you can see the different water rides waiting for you to enjoy. There are 14 water attractions in Laketown Waterpark, such as the V-shaped 'Boomerang', the only one in Malaysia and Southeast Asia, where riders slide down from a height of 35 feet. The Giant Wet Bubble offers tremendous fun, as do the Tube and Body Slides, Lazy River and the Giant Wave Pool. Small children have their own fun pool.

The fun continues in the Games & Shopping Arcade, where there are games with prizes to be won, video games to challenge and souvenirs to buy. You can also experience guided jungle trekking by day or by night, go fishing and enjoy water sports and lake cruises.

Gamuda Luge Gardens

Live Life on the Fast Lane

Start by living life on the fast lane at Skyline Luge @ Gamuda Luge Gardens. You can choose to go down between four specially designed tracks with various obstacles that will keep your heart pounding.

From twists, turns, tunnels, and downhill slopes, the variety will leave you spoilt for choice and keep you on the track for hours at a time. The luge is equipped with a handlebar for steering and controlling speed, which you will be thankful for when you're navigating those hairpin turns and making your way through their 160m-long luge tunnels! So, whether you're an apprehensive but enthusiastic beginner or a Fast & Furious superfan, rest assured that you'll find the perfect experience to live out your Tokyo Drift dreams. However, do remember to check the height requirements and restrictions before riding. This can be easily found and accessed via their website.

Before any visitor could start zooming down tracks though, they would need to get there by riding on the Skyride first. This is a 4-seater chairlift that will carry you straight to the start of the track, working in a similar manner to a ski lift. The chairlift will be open aired, so try and see if you can spot the track that you'll be racing on when you get to the top! Keep an eye out for the Luge combo tickets to be able to ride both attractions for a reasonable price. Tickets to enjoy just the Skyride are also available.

After an invigorating adrenaline rush, head over to the Gamuda Luge Garden's Fun Park, an outdoor amusement park and take a ride on their majestic Eye of Gardens. This is Malaysia's largest and tallest Ferris wheel, standing at a breathtaking height of 50m. Be wow-ed by the spectacular bird's eye view and take in the opportunity to feel like you're at the top of the world, surely an experience you won't want to miss.

There are several other, more family friendly attractions as well. The young ones will be delighted to ride the adorable Fruit Frenzy that spins you around in cute watermelon-shaped swings, adding a splash of sweetness to your visit. If you haven't had enough of spinning round and round, try giving the Jellycup Twist a try. Here, families can sit together and spin with the jellyfish themed seating, like a teacup ride.

For those wishing to know what it's like to be royalty, pick a mighty steed at the carousel and live out your fairytale dreams. This is a ride perfect for young children and for those young at heart, surely promising a magical time. For brave knights, there will be nothing better to prove your valour than conquering the Jumpshot, where parkgoers will be (safely) shot seven meters into the sky in a thrilling yet adorable frog themed ride. Take it a step further by challenging the Vroomerang in all its ten-meter-high glory. In this ride, parkgoers will be spun in a huge circle and slide side-to-side in a thrilling track that will both stun and excite. Afterwards, you and your family might want to cool off at the Big Bucket Splash, an attraction that covers 10,000 sqft of land. The attraction features slides, a shallow pool, a rain bucket, and much more.

From scaly friends to furry friends, there are also rabbits that you can visit too! Parkgoers are welcome to enjoy these fluffy critters and take part in feeding them for a small fee. Monsopiad Heritage Village

Exotic Kadazan Culture

Some 300 years ago, in a village in Penampang, Sabah, there lived a great Kadazan warrior named Monsopiad. So great was his power that no enemy could defeat him. During his lifetime, in order to protect his village, Monsopiad took the heads of 42 enemies.

Today, the 6th and 7th generation descendants of Monsopiad still live on their ancestral land by the scenic Moyog River. And in memory of the great Monsopiad, they have built the Monsopiad Heritage Village, a fascinating authentic showcase of the rich and ancient culture of the Kadazans that goes back a long time in history.

The Kadazans are part of the Kadazandusun community, the biggest ethnic group in Sabah. The Monsopiad Cultural Village has been built with traditional materials used by the Kadazandusun people for centuries, such as jungle logs, palm leaves and bamboo. After a warm greeting by your Kadazan host at the entrance to Monsopiad Cultural Village and a welcome drink of 'tapai' (rice-wine), you can see the various daily activities in a Kadazan village. Here, everyone wears the traditional black Kadazan attire.

A big attraction is the replica of Monsopiad's house, sitting on the original site, and raised off the ground. You climb up a log with steps cut into it to reach the bamboo landing before entering the spacious house.

The Kadazans cultivate rice, and it is impressive to see the rhythmic pounding of rice in a wooden mortar. You can have a go at pounding rice, if you like. The rice is then stored in a big 'tangkob' or rice bin. Kadazan villagers also brew rice wine and make sago from the sago palm. The men make bamboo fish traps, machetes, gongs and blowpipes. The women weave cloth and mats, do embroidery and beadwork, and make 'sirung' (the conical hat) and 'tadang' (the carrier basket). The Kadazans are also famous for their dances, and you can join in during the performances!

In the House of Skulls are the skulls of the 42 enemies slain by Monsopiad. Also displayed are items used by the Bobohizans, the high priestesses, who occupy an important place in the Kadazan community. The Bobohizans continue to look after the skulls according to age-old customs and traditions.

So vivid are the stories told by the Kadazan guide that one can feel the presence of Monsopiad. Finally, as a fitting tribute to a great Kadazan warrior, you can follow the guide and trek up the hill to view the grave of the mighty Monsopiad.

Other attractions are the Kadazan wedding ceremony staged every Saturday in December, and the 40-minute Moyog River cruise in a 'lipa lipa' boat to Sodomon Jetty, during which you can see rice fields, birds and the mystical Mount Kinabalu in the distance.

Mari Mari Cultural Village

A Living Museum of Fascinating Cultures

A peek into the age-old cultures of Borneo, an exciting time with sea gypsies, feared headhunters and warriors, and amazing tribal performances. Who says fun only lies at the gaming arcades and theme parks?

If you have always been enchanted by the diversity of cultures and richness of history, Mari Mari Cultural Village in Sabah is the place to be.

Lying on Northeastern Borneo, Sabah is home to more than 30 indigenous groups. Each indigenous group has its own fascinating array of cultures, customs, traditions and languages. Although the communities live with modern conveniences and facilities, their age-old practices and cultural heritage is still well-preserved and deeply respected.

Mari Mari Cultural Village gives you a chance to get a glimpse of Sabah's colourful cultures in just half a day. 'Mari' which means 'come' or 'come along', represents the warm and welcoming nature of the friendly ethnic groups as they host visitors. Here, you will find out how the ethnic communities lived long before the advent of modern conveniences. What was their lifestyle like, deep in the rainforest of Borneo?

The village showcases the five main indigenous groups of Northeast Borneo – Dusun, Rungus, Lundayeh, Bajau and Murut -while serving as a living museum that preserves the fascinating cultures and traditions of the ethnic communities.

Love bouncing on a trampoline? Don't miss the chance to jump on 'Lansaran', a traditional trampoline and get rewarded too!

The tours give you the chance to meet the descendants of the ethnic communities and visit the tribal villages. The best part is, visitors get the chance to sample some tasty local treats and drinks, try out dart blowing or even get a henna tattoo.

One of the highlights is watching the Magunatip bamboo dance, which is regarded as one of Sabah's most popular traditional performances. The dancers deftly hop between bamboo poles that are constantly being clapped together. As the music quickens, the dancers will have to quicken their moves too in sync with the tempo.

Filled with rare and unique activities, Mari Mari Cultural Village allows you to blend in with the indigenous communities, giving new meaning to fun and adventure!

Sarawak Cultural Village

Step into a Longhouse

Shoot blowpipe darts like a true Penan, walk across the narrow bamboo bridge, gape at real skulls in the Iban House, climb up the Melanau Tall House... all these fun and adventurous activities, and more, await you at the fascinating Sarawak Cultural Village near Kuching.

Exotic Sarawak is famous for its many ethnic groups such as Iban, Bidayuh, Orang Ulu, Melanau, Penan, Malay and Chinese, who traditionally live in different parts of this huge state. To visit their traditional settlements would take many days. Fortunately, at the Sarawak Cultural Village situated at the foot of the legendary Mount Santubong, these interesting cultures can be experienced in one place.

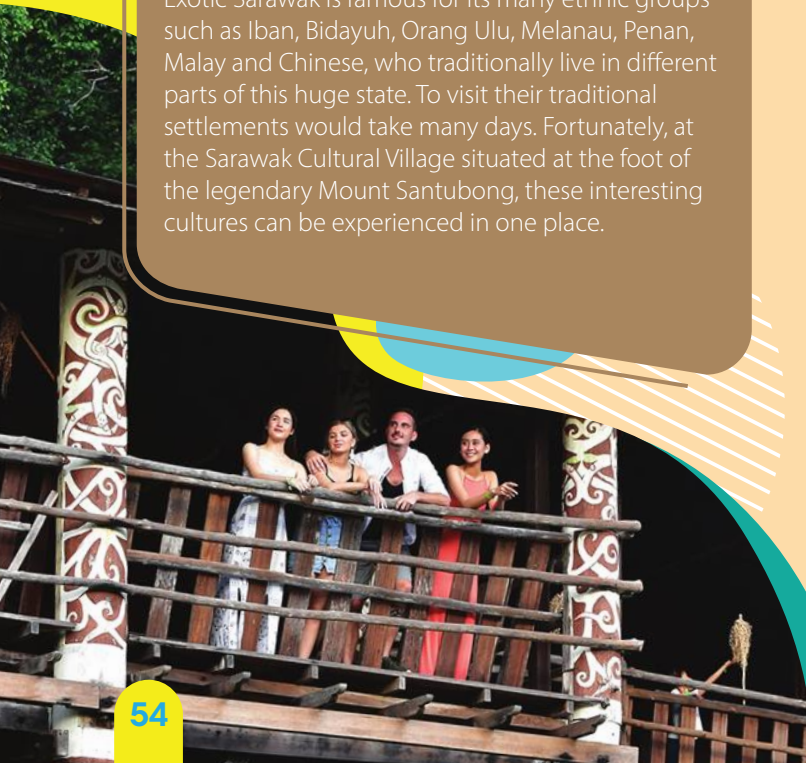

The first stop is the Bidayuh Longhouse. In the Barok – the head-house of the Bidayuhs – traditional gongs, war drums and bamboo musical instruments are displayed. In one of the longhouse dwellings, sitting by the window is a master carver expertly carving an intricate design on bamboo – free hand! Outside, two Bidayuh ladies in traditional black outfits are busy pounding and winnowing rice, while another demonstrates the art of weaving fine bamboo strips into beautiful baskets. You can try your hand at these activities. For some adventure, don't forget to walk across the narrow bamboo bridge, just wide enough for one person. Feel the bridge bend and sway under your weight, and imagine rushing water below.

Built above ground, the Iban Longhouse has a notched log serving as a staircase to the house. Several individual family rooms front the common walkway in an Iban Longhouse. In each unit, enemy skulls in a net hang from the rafters, as the Ibans were fierce head-hunters in the olden days. An Iban lady can be seen weaving the traditional 'pua' on a back-strap loom while others make the intricate beaded collar and the tasty 'kuih jala'.

The Penan Hut is very small and simple, as Penans are nomadic people who live in the dense virgin forests of Central Borneo. They use the blowpipe for hunting, and a Penan warrior would be happy to show you how to make a blowpipe, all by hand, and shoot with it. The Penans are also very skilful at making decorations from soft wood.

The Kayan, Kenyah, Kelabit, Lun Bawang and other minor tribes of Sarawak are known as Orang Ulu. On the verandah of the imposing Orang Ulu Longhouse, the Orang Ulu musician plays a beautiful melody on the 'sape', a stringed musical instrument. The ladies are famous for their intricate beadwork, which is demonstrated in the longhouse.

The Melanau people traditionally lived near the sea and as a means to protect themselves from the pirates, their houses are built 40 feet above the ground! At the Melanau Tall House, you need to climb up a long ladder to enter the wooden house. Outside the house is a Melanau carved totem pole, traditionally used to bury the village headmen. In a small house, a Melanau lady is demonstrating the art of making sago pearls and crispy sago biscuits, from grating the sago palm trunk to roasting the finished product. You can also try your hand at grating the sago palm trunk.

The traditional Malay house is a wooden house built on stilts. The windows are cut down to floor level for maximum ventilation, allowing cool breeze into the house. High artistic skills can be witnessed in the beautifully-decorated stairs and window railings, fascia boards under the eaves and the ventilation grills above or beside doorways. You can join in the many traditional Malay games being demonstrated here, including 'gasing' and 'congkak'.

The Chinese farmhouse is a simple wooden house built on the ground with trodden earth for a floor, whitewashed plank walls and a thatched 'attap' roof. The interior consists of an open kitchen, dining and living sections, and a storage area for valuables such as bicycles or agricultural machinery as well as sectioned-off bedrooms. The household shrine is a focal point in the living area, while the doorpost is often pasted with pieces of red paper bearing auspicious words to bring luck or divine protection for the family. Outside the house is a pepper garden, one of Sarawak's signature crops.

After exploring the houses in Sarawak Cultural Village, sit back and enjoy dance performances of the tribes in the air-conditioned theatre. Among them is the spectacular Iban Ngajat Lesong, where an Iban warrior demonstrates the extraordinary strength of his teeth by dancing with a 20kg mortar clamped in this mouth. To complete the Sarawak cultural experience, savour some Sarawakian food at the restaurant and pick up some souvenirs at the handicraft shop.
